Disseqt AI selected for Enterprise Ireland programme led by 500 Global

Mindflair plc, the AIM-quoted company focused on investing in Artificial Intelligence ("AI") related technology, is pleased to announce that Disseqt AI Limited ("Disseqt AI"), an investee company of Mindflair, has been selected by Enterprise Ireland to participate in an accelerator programme led by 500 Global, the leading US venture capital firm that has backed companies including Intercom, Canva, Reddit and Stripe.

Disseqt AI is one of eight Irish technology companies selected for the programme, alongside DevAlly, Hari, Invizar, Jarvio, Paygentic, Talio and Veloz.

The programme is designed to connect ambitious Irish startups with world-class expertise and US market insight, with a particular focus on go-to-market strategy, investor readiness and US market validation. The selected companies are currently participating in a four-week virtual phase, after which founders will travel to Palo Alto next month for two weeks of intensive market validation, including pitch rehearsals ahead of a showcase event on 14 May 2026, investor meetings and partner events at Intercom and Carta.

According to 500 Global, the programme is intended to stress-test each company's commercial scalability against Silicon Valley expectations, challenging founders to refine their global value propositions and validate US market signals.

Mindflair has built a portfolio of 30 AI-focused companies to date and continues to support investee businesses as they scale internationally.

Nicholas Lee, Director of Mindflair plc, commented:

"We are pleased to see Disseqt AI selected for the Enterprise Ireland programme with 500 Global. We believe that this is a powerful endorsement of the company's potential and an important opportunity for it to refine its product, validate US market demand and support its international growth ambitions."
